

Title: Appleton Mediaeval Weekend Walk

Author: Stuart Bell

Date: 2016

Appleton le Moors, an interesting village on the Tabular Hills near Kirkbymoorside, held a long planned Mediaeval Weekend in July and our intrepid walker, Stuart Bell, offered – once we got his arm far enough up his back – to lead a guided walk there. It looks to have been a superb event and we all hope that it will be repeated next year. Here are a few of his photos.

In Stuart's words;

We walked up from Sinnington – a lovely slow climb initially alongside the River Seven, but then up through the woods and fields to Appleton-le-Moors where their medieval weekend was in full swing. We enjoyed demonstrations by a blacksmith, a wool spinner and then a fascinating guided walk round the historic village before I adjourned to the pub!
